[00:00:05] Right. Looks like we have just about everybody. And I believe we are live based on the note I see on the screen. We are live on the YouTube page. It'll just take Emily one more minute to

[00:00:18] get us live on the public meeting page and then we'll be good to go. Okay. All right. We are now

[00:01:49] live everywhere. Great. Thank you. Okay. So this will commence the first meeting for the special special committee to review the standards of accreditation. I'd like to thank my fellow committee members for joining me on this endeavor and definitely welcome the other board members and DOE staff to join the discussion. I prepared an action plan document that I was going to propose that we use to guide our planning, guide our discussion and our action planning moving

[00:02:26] forward. I apologize now. I work at the shipyard. We over-engineer everything. And so I'm very flexible and open to any other approach. And we'll talk about that here in a little bit. But if I'm able to share screen now, what I would like to do is first just go over, I guess you could say, today's agenda. It's built into part of the action planning. But I'll ask if

[00:02:58] I can get a thumbs up that people can see my document. Thank you, Dr. Doran. So under initial key tasks or our agenda today, I'd like to just discuss our action plan approach. I'm going to very briefly go through this document just to kind of baseline us in some structure of thought and whether it's this document or some other modified version of it, we end up starting at very beginning, basically gaining consensus from the committee on the scope of work. We had a lot

[00:03:34] of discussion yesterday at the board meeting about the intent of this work and the scope, and so I just want to reaffirm the committee's understanding, and that ultimately becomes our objective that begins to outline this document. So we'll do that. I'd like to have a discussion about identifying any other advisors to the committee uh get some recommendations whether that's organizations whether that's professionals themselves um i'd like to just kind of open that

[00:04:10] up to for discussion um i'd like to spend some time determining what additional data presentations we'd like to request of the doe a couple of items one listed there uh relative to the matrix based matrix-based system that's something that i had some interest myself in digging a little deeper but again as a committee i'd like us to uh agree on what specific data points we would like to hear from the board so we can begin to kind of plan out what that timeline could look like um and then i'd like to wrap up just with some discussion around like agreeing around a high level timeline

[00:04:48] and what our meeting cadence will be um i do plan on extending this meeting to 2 15. um it was supposed supposed to be an hour meeting. I will be wrapping up at 2.15 because I do have a hard stop then, but if time permits, then we will go ahead and work on, and my recommendation would be to go ahead and work on starting to discuss some of the inputs to the working plan, the action plan that we're going to go through above based on some of the discussions yesterday and our thoughts today. So if that sounds like an okay approach for this meeting, I'll look for some nods from

[00:05:26] my teammates. Okay, great. All right. So basically what this action plan approach does is it helps us really first baseline in what the objective is. And part of our efforts will be to determine what does in-state look like ultimately said differently as a committee uh what will what will finished look like for us and that might be a little hard to identify it right now that's why it's tbd um i typically like to address the in-state statement after we've had at least one solid

[00:06:04] good meeting of discussion on filling out the meat of some of the things you'll see below uh but then um uh under the mission analysis which is really just kind of breaking down uh what we know what we think what we feel um and and and key things we must protect or be aware of i this uh approach in my experience in the past has really helped uh organize the team's thoughts around uh a consistent uh path plan forward so i you know i had some initial uh notes myself

[00:06:40] coming into this um i captured a lot of notes yesterday in the board meeting so i went ahead and took the liberty of putting some of those things in some of these categories just to give the committee some context. Where I put them may not be where they belong, and that'll be part of our discussion. And I also left some open-ended statements in some categories just to ensure that our, again, our frame of thought kind of prompts us in the right direction. You'll see some more

[00:07:14] of that as we scroll down. So we want to start with what we absolutely know. And we know a lot when it comes to the standards of accreditation. If we just look at the presentation that we got yesterday, there's a lot of facts in that, maybe too many facts to the point of simplicity. But really, we want to kind of bottom line up front the key things that we know about the current system and maybe even its history that may have relevance to our discussions moving forward.

[00:07:46] Obviously, some assumptions that we might make, I identified one there that we could assume. In one case, we might know that accreditation might be waived this year, but we don't know about next year. It's an assumption. So I'm sure there's other assumptions we'll make.

[00:08:03] And then, you know, considerations. This is where I identified a lot of the comments from the board as far as questions to flesh out things to consider. And then we go into limitations. And there's two types of limitations. This is always an important part of the discussion because a lot of times teams get too far down the road and they realize that they didn't consider a guideline or a restriction or some sort of factor that would have changed the direction of the team's thoughts.

[00:08:33] So we get those out up front, maybe not all collectively, but we try to get a good stab at it. So constraints are things that we must do and include in our plan, like absolutes. And then the restraints are things that we must avoid doing, right? Risks, we probably interpret that a little bit differently in the engineering world.

[00:08:54] But ultimately for this, an example of risks for us would be unintended outcomes. priorities we're certainly going to want to prioritize to me the priority sections ties very closely to the end state uh because it really should you know really if it's what matters in this work then it's it should be the outcome of this work uh and then um so then that's really just kind of baselining the team in in what we know and what we think um and what we feel then we move into actions and we we we actually you know they're kind hand abs obviously in tandem we're actually taking in action right now by confirming this approach

[00:09:33] but particularly the the meat of this will be under additional key tasks uh where you know we begin to identify uh other actions that we want to take or consider or evaluate as part of this committee um a lot of times those additional key tasks will also help define the timeline uh once we really get a feel for what how much we got to go after so um and then obviously the goal is to get to some sort of recommendations if it warrants any, and then to chart the way ahead.

[00:10:04] How do you close the gap between the recommendations and what actually gets put in place? So really basic. It's not, you know, anything designed by NASA, but for me and some of the teams I've been on and led, it really helps organize and makes the meetings in my mind more effective. So I'll pause there to open up the floor to anyone to really provide any suggestions, particularly about the format, not necessarily getting into the words yet that's in it, as far as reviewing the standards of accreditation, but open to some discussions about taking this approach.

[00:10:43] So, Dr. Pexton, I'm sorry, Francisco, go ahead. No, you go ahead, Dr. Wilson. I was just going to say, the outline or having the structure is really very helpful. um and understanding that we may move some things around but the structure is i think really helpful um i think we i know i will need to be probably um uh reminded or um ensure that i am using the terminology in the same way that you are you know with some of the things and so that may be

[00:11:22] something that you know to kind of make sure we all remain on the same page that we're all defining things in the same way yeah um and the way you've explained them at the outset is helpful but we may have to i know for me i may need you to bring me back wait wilson that's not what we're talking about here so okay no that's good and part of this discussion too is is if we do agree to go with this approach you know and and we and we don't necessarily have to get into that those details now but i'm i'm not tied to these words understood you so we'll want to make it comfortable for all of us that's understood thank you um i wanted to say thank you for this i really appreciate

[00:12:00] the format and it helps um organize this in a way because you know listening to the presentation yesterday and how much is in science accreditation we certainly could go into a lot of different places so this really helps guide us the only question i had and i don't know if it's getting too much into the conversation so you could pause me if it is the end state and the recommendations and connecting to the objective i would like to understand from maybe dr lane or holly coy i think think she's on what is if we were to make recommendations and if there was an end state is there a certain date and a time that would help to influence so that changes could be made that would have an impact on schools what is that timeline often when we're thinking about any

[00:12:40] accreditation changes there is a time and a place that needs to that occur and I'm not clear on when that would be and that would help me to think about the objective and the end state and again if that's getting too much into the work I'll pause if you're still talking about the format but for me, as I think about the format for this, that really helps me to think through a lot of the areas that you were talking about, each of these components. Now, I'll just take that real quick, Dr. Pexton, if you don't mind. Yeah, please. And maybe it's really a deferral to Emily, but Francisco, what you may want to know is how the regulatory process works, because the time

[00:13:17] from the time you make your decisions to implementation can be very lengthy. We were able to do the 2017 revision pretty quickly because it was a priority for Governor McAuliffe. So they expedited some of the review on the governor's side but emily do you want to talk about some of that sure absolutely um so there are and i won't go through the whole regulatory scheme today but there are several steps with the regulatory process um first and we will plan to bring this to the board uh at your july meeting we are going to have to do a notice of intended regulatory action and that's just really setting up the framework that the board is starting to think

[00:13:56] about changes to the regulations. You don't have to put in there what those changes are going to be necessarily but we do need to start that process. From there and that goes through the executive branch review process which includes the Attorney General, the Department of Planning and Budget, as well as the Secretary and Governor's Office. From there we'll go into a proposed stage and then final stage. Each of those stages having public comment opportunities for folks to give feedback to the board in addition to when you would have

[00:14:28] your regular feedback at board meetings. Typically, the regulatory process is an 18-month process from kind of start to finish. We do, when the proposed changes are where you make the bulk of your changes from proposed to final, it's really just kind of refinements and tweaks based on any public comment or any new information that the board may receive as dr. Lane mentioned we did somewhat expedite our 2017 revisions because we worked with the governor's office along the way and we can do that again this time we had several briefings with them so that their review didn't take quite as long

[00:15:07] as a normal review process we reviewed with them in advance to make sure they were comfortable with any changes one other thing that I'll just note we've had our own kind of staff internal working soa committee for the last several months that is starting to look at potential tweaks and changes really more on the technical aspect of it but that's something that we could also bring to you all for consideration at a later date again more technical changes than you know major kind of policy shifts but staff is certainly here to to

[00:15:43] support that so you know my personal opinion i think we're probably looking at potentially you know not a short time frame of this being completed sometime in the fall you know maybe sometime next year this committee could um you know conclude their work to bring recommendations to the full board so that we then get them in a proposed stage um format for regulatory action could i ask the follow-on question sorry james no jamelle please go so i have a question you

[00:16:16] mentioned a first step being to kind of a signal some change coming with some some action in july um and then toward the end of your remarks you talked about the technical adjustments that internal that staff is looking at anyway um we what we said yesterday in our um work session was that we are not we as a board are not entering this conversation with the intent of making changes but rather to determine so i wonder if by making a statement or beginning a process in july does that signal that we already know what we're going to you know that we're going to bring

[00:16:55] changes or or is that are the technical changes something that also have i would want to be really careful that we're not signaling anything at this point you know july is next week so to speak you know what I mean? And that just doesn't quite square. Yeah, so to me, and we call it a NORA for short, a NORA just signals that you're starting to look and open up the regulations and it's really, it's somewhat of a formality because we can't move into the other stages until we go through

[00:17:31] the NORA process. So even if the board decides later on, you know, that you don't need any additional changes you don't have to move forward with next steps if you determine that there isn't a need for it and certainly you know if the board feels like there are technical changes that the staff brings but you don't have any policy changes we could use that nora as well ideally we would have any changes this committee would do and any changes that the technical staff committee would look at and bring those together so it's one comprehensive action great just didn't want to

[00:18:08] get over our skis on this thing. Yes, absolutely. And the only thing I was going to add Dr. Paxton to Emily's answer is whereas there are ways that we could expedite this as Emily said to get to a year 18 month timeline and obviously working with the executive branch would help expedite that.

[00:18:31] But keep in mind ultimately the board has passed regulations before that have held an executive to review for many years. So there's no guarantee that even if we do everything that we want to do, that your changes would happen fast. Obviously, the more we work hand in hand, that will happen. But just being realistic, it could take time. And 18 months from now is in the middle of a gubernatorial transition. And so that could delay it for obvious reasons while the new administration comes on and gets up to speed if we can't get it done by the time the

[00:19:10] northern administration ends any other questions or thoughts about or recommendations about okay then you all will become engineers all right so so um next i want to spend some time um just again baselining us and the scope of work the objective i took a stab very late last night

[00:19:50] at writing a paragraph you see it in front of you so i had to quickly read it to just make sure there was no typos but uh this was my attempt of trying to really bottom line up front what we're trying to accomplish and so i i i don't think we need to get into the work with war but i do think we have to have a solid uh understanding of what we're trying to accomplish and i feel like we do but um so i'm i'm you know i'll read to you what i have here you can read for yourself but i think hearing it out loud just helps a little bit so and what i'll be looking for is is is feedback on how we can

[00:20:26] shore up our our objectives so so the objective is to conduct a review of our newly implemented accreditation system to assess anticipated anticipated positive negative and unintended outcomes of performance indicators just a quick point there um you know through some discussions i heard yesterday and even some discussions i've had with with dan and just kind of really understanding the history of this i i do think that there are i just want to delineate between positive negative and unintended some might think well what's the difference between negative and

[00:21:02] unintended we that when my interpretation is that there might have been anticipated positive ones there might have been anticipated negative ones so we want to validate if that's true and there might have been unintended outcomes so just wanted to make that delineation or or distinction, consider data available since implementation, as well as current state affairs, validate efficient progress towards original intended outcomes, and provide system change recommendations if warranted. So, open the floor up for some feedback about making sure we've got

[00:21:37] a good baseline scope. Could I ask a question? The statement, validate efficient progress toward original intended outcomes help me understand what you mean by that so i struggled with that word i i had a sufficient there first and um because the system was newly implemented and there might be a difference of opinion i teeter on that word because i i don't know if it's been in place enough long enough for us to be able to gauge what is sufficient um so we want to validate

[00:22:15] progress but do we want you know one degree of progress or 100 degrees of progress relative to the time so um yeah and i think so so hearing you explain it that way i don't know that we and it would be a history lesson for us i don't know if as the soas as they currently exist if the board contemplated benchmarks toward success right or benchmarks toward outcomes by timeline or i'm not certain about that so it would be interesting to hear kind of a summary of what the thinking

[00:22:52] was at the time or maybe we didn't even address it at all um but i i understand the point that you're making um um and then if there aren't such if that conversation was not um a concerted effort then perhaps identifying what we would expect now you know what i mean kind of putting some benchmarks in place but i think somewhere you have in the document i can't find it right now but some intimation of that yeah um i you know i think that you know what i was trying to capture

[00:23:30] here is basically what i heard and what i understood scope to be what i thought i heard validated yesterday and in the in the working meeting was that um we want to consider the time that has passed recognizing it's not much and so i was trying to capture well if we want to want to consider that time, then how would we consider it? How would we, you know, so again, if there's a recommendation on how to better capture that or capture that differently,

[00:24:02] by all means, I'm ready to type. I don't have a suggestion, but I will give it some thought.

[00:24:18] I'm going to highlight that for now as a point to, you know, to consider. Any other thoughts or is there a consensus on it as it's written other than that highlighted part is there consensus that that's captured what our intent is I feel comfortable with it with the with the caveat maybe that as we get further you know just as we there were some piece you were talking about maybe

[00:24:54] revisiting so making sure that our objectives as we learn more still fits or if we need to tweak it but I think for me structurally right now it seems to capture what where I think we want to want to start

okay i agree okay all right um so now i'd like to talk a little bit about um identifying who we think will uh be key contributors to our discussions over the next uh period of time

[00:25:33] i'll say for now uh uh relative to organizations or professions professionals um dan i know that when you and i spoke you made reference to a couple of gentlemen who were part of a uva organization or group or um so i don't know if you maybe wanted to share your thought there if it's still a relevant thought but any other suggestions that you guys may have um i'd you saw one of them today luke miller uh he you know the curry school has done some work with us before

[00:26:11] and Jim Wyckoff we've seen come before us you know James I don't know if you think they'd be good fits for where we or Dan Player you know where we're where we want to go but that's the way I was referring to Keisha is UVA has been gracious at times to give us some support you know from the outside they've got a fairly broad view of the world and a lot of data from other places that might also help okay James any thoughts yeah I know that

[00:26:50] in talking with some of the folks at UVA, they tend to favor some of the more traditional type accountability measures. So I would pair that with somebody that is thinking more in the innovative space. And one of my recommendations would be to take a look at the team that we put together for the COVID-related task force and maybe pull some names from there. Lori McCullough at VASCD would be one recommendation uh alan siebert from salem rosa atkins had really strong feelings on this

[00:27:26] another superintendent i would have a teacher rep and so you know just just a couple couple people like that yeah i'm gonna need you to go back to mccall i am i am spelling challenged and so uh could you uh mention those i'll put it i'll drop it i'll drop it to you in the chat i can also help with some of these names as we have a draft i can go back and help edit as well um and you know dr lane and i had even talked about potentially at a future meeting having um the covet accreditation task force come and present some of their recommendations to this

[00:28:04] group as well um which you know we can decide when it's best to have them them come and potentially present to you i'm actually going to move them down here but to your point earlier dr lane you did recommend that there might actually be so there's a covet accreditation task force but you recommended there might be some other covid task force members as well that could be advisors or were you specifically referring to the accreditation task force yeah i i guess i would like to know how

[00:28:42] many advisors you were looking for if you were looking for a very small number then i would have a different take than if you wanted to have you know a teacher rep a principal rep a superintendent rep an association rep uh so i would probably need clarity before but i i dropped a few groups that I would be really thoughtful about in the chat privately to you okay to that point is there a thought amongst the committee as far as who how many advisors I didn't put very much thought into

[00:29:19] how many until James it might be useful to rather than putting a number on it what we need to know more about and then identifying who the right people are um so i don't have specific names that i would suggest but i i don't know that um you know wanting to make sure we have representation from a b c and d makes sense before we really understand what more we need to know and certainly

[00:29:54] we would want to have opportunities for input but that's different i think from providing us advisement sure yeah um i agree with that thought uh i think once we know more we'll want to know more

i maybe i was approaching this from uh just continuing to get us solid in our understanding and what else we might want to know maybe some of that will come out more so in some of the

[00:30:22] presentations and additional data but uh point point taken all right any other questions the the only other and this would be if you're keeping it really small the education commission of the states can be an advisor that can bring you information on what other states are doing the space and even if they don't if they're not personally advisors they can produce reports for you and i just want to recommend them to you okay yeah i have them in here somewhere okay

[00:30:58] they were great in the last round about bringing what other states were doing although the data was relatively limited because Virginia was further ahead than most states but certainly now they could help us you know with the review of other state data you know provide us that analysis as well okay I also wonder um Dr. Lane um maybe under Leah Walker or the committee that was on equity is there someone or a group you would recommend on that from that group or who would

[00:31:33] you recommend from the equity lens respect because I don't see that specifically here well certainly leah is someone i would have as an advisor but you know she will be part of the agency staff and uh but the um when i think about the work that the uh african american history commission has been doing uh idra has been a really great partner in this space and they have the they run the equity assistant center of the south uh and so that's one and then uh their um there are equity leads in other organizations as well uh ccsso has an equity team that we could

[00:32:12] bring uh and so i think her name is annie holmes but uh um so yeah i can i can i can make recommendations to you and i would probably want to bring leah in but those are two i know that she thinks about all the time and then the only other one i would see is who might maribel recommend from the el perspective because i do want us to look at that and that would be an important i'm not sure who she's been working with and partner on that but that's important to me yeah and i i just got a message from leah she would recommend uh education trust john king the

[00:32:49] former secretary of ed under president obama leads that organization and it's very equity focused so they know policy so i would i would recommend education trust and then if if beyond leah there are equity coordinators in several of our school divisions so maybe a representative of that group as well. Do you provide a name for the education trust, Leah? I don't know that he will do it himself, but John King leads that group, but I think the organization might be an advisor to the

[00:33:23] board, but we can certainly ask Dr. King. Yeah, we have worked with them in the past, not on this topic specifically, but we can certainly, Leah and I can work to potentially identify someone from education trust that could help support the committee's work and then again dr lane i don't know if you heard my last comment on ell but um anyone that you'd recommend with that dr lane with maribel and a group an organization that's working with you yeah i think uh if leah's on the

[00:33:59] phone she can make recommendations we have staff uh that i would recommend but you know obviously staff will be at the table throughout this process uh but i'll have to i'll have to defer to leah on who might be best because this is such a a nuanced policy uh uh conversation so let me let me circle back on that one or leah if you're on feel free to jump in okay well we can circle back if we leave the el as a blank and just making sure we get someone there yeah i'll i'll get a

[00:34:35] name there for you thank you all right so um to move on to the next bullet um just referring back to the presentation we received yesterday from the department and a lot of good information a lot of good a good good historical context um were there any gaps in understanding or additional information that our committee would like the request of the board other than what's listed

[00:35:12] on the screen could i make one uh comment about the second bullet there i know that dr lane i I think mentioned two of these two indicators that are noted here. But the question that I was raising yesterday, if there are other, just clearly understanding or remembering even the laundry list, if you will, of indicators that we vetted through back in '16, '17, so that we are reminded of the ground that we've already plowed.

[00:35:45] And certainly we know that these two specifically kind of made the last cut or the, you know, kind of the almost last cut, but just having an appreciation for the kinds of things that were considered at the time, I think would be really helpful.

[00:36:01] For me, it would be helpful. And so if it's not good for the group, I'm happy for staff to just remind me of what that was or point me to the board minutes or committee minutes so that I can capture them. Emily, if that's possible, I'm sorry to ask you to dig, but.

[00:36:17] - Yeah, yeah, we have lots of information that I can, I'm happy to pull together and give to you all as either background or make a presentation at the next committee meeting. So we're happy to do that digging.

[00:36:33] I was here for some of it, but we have lots of information that's out there. - So another thing I noted yesterday, as we were going through the philosophy of accountability, there's a bullet there that talks about that our accountability system, or generally we wanted to make sure that technical assistance and school improvement resources were flowing in the way necessary to support schools.

[00:37:06] And it would be, again, if it's somewhere that we've already seen it, just bring it back to the surface. But what have been those efforts, right? So if we're going to assess or evaluate whether or not there's been progress made, whether we intended it or not, understanding what resources the department has put into the the accreditation or support for schools around accreditation that would be helpful to know and whether those are staff resources or fiscal resources if

[00:37:43] there are federal dollars that we've been able to re-orchestrate or re-constitute any of that captured that what resources DOE has put into the port for schools around around SOA right any other gaps or requested information I'm gonna give

[00:38:21] people time to go back through their notes if they are okay we can always come back to that if something else comes up I'm sure there'll be more that'll develop over time all right so I want to talk a little bit about logistics we've talked a little bit about timeline but I really want to kind of get a little bit more granular and talk about our meeting cadence and what we propose an initial

[00:38:56] timeline might be recognizing that it could likely change my my initial approach to promote things like this is you know if if it's going to be a one you know one year endeavor you know you spend the first two months three months maybe meeting every two weeks or so to really kind of get the momentum going and then you kind of level off into a monthly cadence to round things out and wrap it up. I was I was reminded appropriately reminded by one of my committee members of the timeframe we're working in right now relative to you

[00:39:33] know the summer and the phases and schools opening up and the demands that are going to be on many of the people that are on this call so I absolutely want to be sensitive to that and and I also want to be sensitive to my own time constraints and so I want to just talk a little bit about what we feel like would be a good meeting cadence meaning meeting how often for how long longer the time in order for us to really feel like we're making some progress is a democracy.

[00:40:11] Well I think I mean I agree with you in the beginning maybe more potentially more we'll have to see what when we start but at the very least if there's a way we can tackle it on the way we did the other committees where it was connected to our board meeting the day before the afternoon that we have to take other board members want to join with us and I know we don't meet every month as a board or maybe we this would meet every month regardless so on those four months we won't meet i would say we would have one of these meetings so at least initially kind of balancing the need of what you said of reopening schools and everything i would say monthly for

[00:40:48] now but i'm hoping to but literally monthly you know on those four months that we wouldn't meet for how long at a time each month would you recommend um what do we normally do emily i think it was what hour and a half two hours is that what it was yeah so it obviously would depend on who the presenters or how many topics we wanted to tackle each meeting but i would say a two hour time frame you know certainly prepare at least one presentation to come in but then certainly time for committee members um and anyone else that may be involved in the meeting to have time to discuss

[00:41:27] and and keep the progress moving forward um and as francisco said we don't have an august meeting but that may also be a good time um for this group to meet even though the board doesn't meet i know that that's often a vacation time but maybe not quite as much this year for folks um so we can you know as long as i have you know some heads up and we can kind of map out meetings in advance that way i can line some folks up we're happy to meet as often as you all um feel we need to yeah i would say two hours and then the other request i would say is that we really identify help

[00:42:04] you help us Emily what are those dates and get those to us right away so we prioritize this in our calendar but I think two hours is good once a month and if we see the need at one of those meetings to add you know additional time then we would all agree but for a foundation I would say monthly for two hours is my recommendation I would agree with that and if we find that there's information and I know we're all busy but for me sometimes if I have the information ahead of time or some information that doesn't actually need a presentation if it's you know kind of reading materials that may help uh expedite sort of some of the process or background gathering

[00:42:44] um but i agree no more than two hours i think we get to a point where we're not necessarily as we might be you know especially on zoom in person energy right of the people around you but this this uh maybe is a little more difficult so that would be my suggestion very good i agree with two hours okay monthly yes ma'am monthly and then step it up as we need to okay all right sounds

[00:43:20] like that's the general consensus of the team so that is what we will go with um so that will be the plan following this meeting you know from a staff perspective we can plan uh for the special committee to meet on a wednesday before your thursday july meeting um and then we can work on some august dates i can work with dr pexton on some good dates that work for her and then get that out to the group here in the next week or so okay sounds good and would we assume emily then that

[00:43:57] for the um september and our other dates moving forward that it would also be the wednesday afternoon um i think it would be safe to assume that you know that that would could be a at least a held date and then you know dr pexton and i can see if we need to meet more often and add some dates in but we'll certainly you know give folks as much advance notice and and make sure that the dates work for others um slightly easier over zoom and the fact that you don't have to travel to richmond but certainly the challenges of being on zoom in general are are there well that's another

[00:44:34] reason why you know once we eventually do travel to richmond if we have it on the times we're already coming down for this that's why i'm recommending that because yeah absolutely we can plan to do that others are looking at everyone on the on our committee maybe dr wilson doesn't have to travel as far as far as the rest of us but but uh for kisha and um not as far but it's still travel still travel but i think of pam driving all those hours she does to get here so as much as we can put that on when we're already there yeah and you know we we do have um you know the flexibility right now to meet virtually I anticipate that that flexibility will continue for a while

[00:45:15] until kind of potentially we're even out of the pandemic you know so there could even be a combination of in person once we're able to meet in person and virtual if we need to do that great thank you okay so I just identified you know we'll guesstimate a year could be a little less could be a little more could be a lot more um meeting monthly for two hours uh starting starting now and beginning in july all right um i was going to get a little bit down into a little bit more

[00:45:52] detail about breaking that up typically in our team we try to set some goals around some phases within that year but we won't go to that level of detail now um what i'd like to spend just maybe about you know up maybe go to about 210 and then open the floor for any final discussions and thoughts but spend the next eight minutes or so just really just taking a look at the outline um you know i said that we could use the balance of the time start filling in some of these um categories but um i first want to ask i know i asked if everybody was good with this approach

[00:46:24] i do want to validate is there anything that's not asked or captioned in this framework that we that we want to make sure we do um for you know we're looking at tax assumptions all that is there Is there any other category of thought or category of awareness that we want to have?

[00:46:46] I just want to be open to that. Okay. Another question I have is relative to the working committee.

[00:47:04] I, myself, I prefer to kind of like Dr. Wilson mentioned, I prefer to get content in advance, read it and absorb it, and then be able to contribute. But I do like, I also prefer to contribute in the present with the team rather than me putting my thoughts, like putting this document in Google Drive or whatever and everybody dumping into it.

[00:47:26] And then we get back to the meeting and everybody's got to unpack their thoughts. So some people prefer to do that because they don't want to take the time to watch it happen on the curve. But I do want to get some feel-back from the team. You're welcome to go and put some thought into where you think you might put some of your ideas and thoughts from yesterday.

[00:47:46] But I would recommend that we actually do the staff work in these meetings and we do some of that research and reading outside. Got a thumbs up from Dr. Duran, so we're going with it. No, that's just me. There's two others.

[00:48:05] Yeah, I agree. I agree. Your thumb went up pretty quick, though. you're like yeah do the staff work here because i really i was in sync with that i really like that approach and i yeah i think you can walk the dialogue with me i really appreciate that too okay um so i'm gonna really just kind of open the floor up for any final thoughts about you know this whole endeavor um maybe use some of this time if there were some lingering thoughts you had from yesterday's presentation um that you'd want to share with the board for consideration This is relative to the DOE and to the committee.

[00:48:44] Just a chance to digress before we wrap up. Dr. Paxton, I know you added it because I put it in the chat, but for the VSBA and VAS members out there, we listed that as possible advisors.

[00:49:02] And I just wanted to note that you added that, so thank you for doing that. Yes, thank you for sending it. - So Dr. Bexton-- - And I'm sorry, that's it, I'm here. - Sorry, I've been doing that to you all day, James. I'm sorry. So before we get off the call, is there a, do we have a thought about kind of what will happen in our next meeting?

[00:49:27] So, 'cause that's, like I said, next week, that's July. And kind of in terms of the cadence that you're seeking to set. - Yes. - And what we believe will be our kicking off or next steps, I guess. yeah i i would anticipate that it at least at least all of next meeting if not all of next meeting and even spilling over into the next and maybe that'll go hand in hand with the presentation in the august meeting but i feel like all of next meeting is really going to be the staff work to really start to begin to fill in these categories we're really going to talk about what are those facts assumptions considerations and things that we want to make sure that we're aligned in and so

[00:50:07] i that's what the next meeting in my mind is going to be about that tends to take a little bit longer than than than i always i think it's going to so i'm giving giving it some more cushion um and my intent would be is wrapping up that meeting getting a good understanding of what what presentation or presentations we might want from from a data standpoint from the board i mean sorry from the department in the august meeting um during during those conversations um or the way i kind of see this playing out in my mind is let's first get grounded in what we're doing let's find out

[00:50:45] what additional information we need to have presentations data research based on that who who else do we want to hear from that's when i feel like we get into the special advisors and things like that um and then after that i feel like we're in the so what stage uh what are we we going to do with all that so that's kind of how i saw this playing out right okay thank you that makes sense just wanted to make sure i understand dr pexton could you expand a little bit more on um kind of specifics of a staff presentation because as dr wilson mentioned we're almost at july and i just want to make sure that from a staff perspective we're starting

[00:51:22] to to pull those items together for you all um and can also get them to you in advance for you to have some time to review yeah the i don't anticipate a staff presentation in july just make i want to make sure on that i anticipate using july for this committee to be doing staff work on this document um and i'm hoping that we will wrap up that meeting with a little bit more context to well so who do we want to hear from in august uh we might that staff work though may spill over into august we i'll have to see kind of how july goes but i don't anticipate wanting

[00:51:58] a presentation unless the committee already knows up front who we want to hear from first i i'd like to level set us in this document first one uh suggestion if it's possible if we can identify or emily and dr lane helping us uh the committee advisors and actually who those are to at least invite them to july to listen and for you know what to the conversation that you just talked about dr pexton because i do think from a i've been a committee advisor in another format and being able to hear the understanding and the thinking helped influence my ability to really

[00:52:33] be effective in providing some thought to the process overall so if at all possible and maybe we won't have them all identified but as many as we can identify and then emily you send an invite just you know for them to watch it wouldn't be presenting of anything like that but i think it would be meaningful for them to listen you're you're spot on uh dr duran and and i'll be honest with you that's that's part of one of the residual values of this type of document you you can really organize your the team's thought in a very clean way and a team member that joins later whatever can read this two-page three-page document and really be grounded in what we're trying to

[00:53:10] accomplish so yes i do agree that there is value in kind of hearing and being a part of that dialogue but that's also part of the intent of this is not only is it the intent of this to make sure we can bring people up to speed and people understand what our what our purpose is but it's also to every once in a while we need to be re-realigned with what we said six months ago it kind of helps bring us back home so but i i'm more than open to um any of the committee advisors that we have listed here that either the committee or the department sees value in inviting them to the

[00:53:45] july meeting absolutely uh so they can get that early context thank you and i and i appreciate again the long-term ability to have this document and our thinking to ground us because i know that once we get into this or others start to contribute it could try and pull us different ways so i appreciate that and i was only responding to emily when she asked about what the staff work might be between now and then and i was requesting that if there might be staff assistance and helping to firm up these names and then invite them absolutely we're you know dr lane and i can work with dr pexton um you know maybe we want to have some kind of more overarching advisors that could advise on

[00:54:24] the whole holistic part whereas some others may be more strategic um in different areas but we can certainly start to identify them and make sure that um you know they're least aware and included in that first initial july meeting thank you yeah that would be helpful for me too working with you and dr lane absolutely happy to do that other concluding thoughts questions that's to say we

[00:54:59] have the right uh committee chair who's absolutely gonna steer us through this we've got our first you might even make me want to become an engineer no not really i'm not even i'm not even an engineer i just have hung out with them for 20 years and so they've rubbed off on me so but seriously thank you you i really appreciate you helped us i i was worried coming into what today was going to be with this committee and after just the first few minutes i felt at ease and really not feel comfortable for

[00:55:36] us to put ourselves together and put some good work so that was a lot of preparation you did and i don't just say that lightly i just want to say thank you thank you appreciate that i'd like to say thank you for being very understanding too that we're getting ready to go into our heaviest phase of the year to start schools back so thank you absolutely sure great thanks thank you keisha no problem all right so this will wrap up uh the first meeting of the special committee to review the accreditation standards and we will resume in July thank you very much take care take care
